

Company Statement

During GB Labs' history, you, our friends, partners and customers and the markets in which we work together, have had to face challenges - big and small - and we have survived by supporting each other and pulling together.

The latest challenge (COVID-19) is no different and we have taken immediate steps to ensure the safety and wellbeing of our staff so that we can still work as normal, offering you the ultimate support and sales that you've come to expect and deserve.

Our staff based in either the UK or US offices, where possible, are switching to remote working. We still have production in the office, but on rota and in different parts of the building so that everyone is safe. We are totally geared up for this and have a comprehensive and determined plan in place that will satisfy and accommodate everyone.

These are unprecedented times and we are working on a document today, together with videos and podcasts, which will be shared ASAP and will be full of hints, tips and tricks on how to get the best out your storage system - regardless of the supplier.

GB Labs is here to help. Support. And benefit your business.

If you have any queries, you can phone our offices or send an email to info@gb labs.com and one of the team will get back to you as soon as possible.
